ST. LOUIS CONVENTION.

Continuation of Debate on the Platform.

Voorhees of Indiana took the platform. He [illegible] there was a false [illegible] of hard and soft money. They were all in favor of resumption as soon as then the [illegible] practicable. Whoever desires it earlier [illegible] for some private improper purpose. He earnestly [illegible] attempt to force resumption. The law had been enforced two years and [illegible] 12 per cent farther from the gold [illegible] than it was when the law was passed. Natural laws, if [illegible], will soon cover the 12 per cent gap between gold and paper. Let us leave the question to the natural laws. Referring to [illegible] he said the West had followed the lead of New York to [illegible] and it was now time to assert the power of the mighty West. [Applause.]

Waterson of Kentucky urged the policy of supporting the committee in the report signed by [illegible] its members after careful consideration and exerting the impolicy of overturning that by the ex[illegible] action of the Convention in its hour of exultation [illegible] stand by the [illegible] and not by the eight who have introduced here this dangerous question. He moved the previous question.

[At ther scene and great confusion many delegates asking to be heard and one from Pennsylvania utterly denouncing the gag law and insisting on the freedom of debate.]

Abbott of New Jersey asked a division of the question. He was in favor of the motion to strike out but was opposed to the insertion of what was proposed, for he was a hard money man.

The previous question was seconded.

Doolittle made a few remarks amid much disorder, in which he said victory or defeat depended on the question now before the Convention and he desired to move an amendment to the pending amendment.

Cox demanded a vote by States on the main question which having been divided the vote was first taken on the motion to strike out.

Doolittle moved to adjourn. Lost.

An attempt was made to call the roll but the disorder was so great that the delegates could not hear enough to understand the question.

A Texas delegate moved to clear the galleries but as the chair did not put the question he evidently did not understand it. The excitement was long, and concluded with increasing force and violence, a dozen gentlemen speaking at once. The Pennsylvania delegation retired for consultation.

Burch of Tennessee wanted to know whether, if the vote to strike out should prevail and the convention fail to insert the proposed substitute the effect would not be to have the resumption act to stand as it is.

The chair answered in the affirmative.

Burch wanted to know, then whether any parliamentary ledger [illegible] could cheat the Convention out of the report. The States were called, when all voted no with exception as follows: Illinois 18 yeas, Iowa 6, Kansas 10, Kentucky 24, Under the unit rule Indiana 30, Michigan [illegible], Missouri 9, Ohio 2[illegible], Tennessee 24, Virginia [illegible], West Virginia 10, Pennsylvania under the unit rule [illegible]. The chair announced the vote—yeas 219, nays [illegible]; the amendment was rejected. During the call the chair stated that during the confusion preceding the call he changed his ruling and the previous question was not divided. Therefore the pending question was in fact upon Ewing's motion both to strike out and insert.

Doolittle read an amendment which he desired to propose, providing that any law substituted for the resumption act when repealed should provide only for a very gradual resumption.

The chair stated that under the operation of the previous question no amendment was in order and the pending question now was upon the adoption of the committee's report.

The roll was called and the only negative votes were Illinois 30, Iowa 4, Kansas 6, Michigan 1, Missouri 8, Virginia 11, West Virginia 1, Indiana 30. The chairman of the delegation said this was because they did not approve the financial plank. Ohio 20.

Before this state announced complaint was made by delegates on the floor that strangers were seated on the platform. Jacobs of Brooklyn was specially named as out of place near the chair. The president directed all not entitled to seats on the platform to retire. The chair announced the vote—yeas 571, nays 83, so the report of the platform committee was adopted.

Doolittle moved to reconsider the vote by which the report was adopted in order to incorporate a proposition which he read in favor of silver as legal tender as well as gold and for the restoration of the double standard of gold and silver at just respective valuations. This was followed by his former proposition in favor of gradual resumption only.

McLane, of Indiana, moved that the motion to reconsider be tabled and in the midst of calls for a vote by States, the chair announced it was carried.

Hutchins moved that the vote in favor of the platform be made unanimous and assigned his five minutes for debate to Cox of New York who, however, was interrupted by calls to order and confusion and was compelled to take his seat unheard.

McLane moved to proceed to nominate candidates for President. [Applause.] Adopted.

The roll of states was called to present their nominees.

When Delaware was called Whitely took the platform and nominated Thomas F Bayard [cheers] whom he eulogized in glowing terms as a Democratic statesman and gentleman. [Applause.]

Kernan and others from New York urged a respectful hearing for Kelly and finally the cries for Kelly were overwhelming. Kelly finally proceeded, urging that the nomination of a Western candidate for President will secure Indiana and Ohio in October, but if we lost these States then it would be impossible to save New York in November.

Mr Williams of Indiana—Mr President and gentlemen of the Convention: In the name and in behalf of the united Democracy of the state of Indiana I put in nomination Gov. Thos A Hendricks of Indiana—[loud and prolonged cheers]—as your candidate for President of the United States. He is a man known to the whole nation. There is no spot or blemish on his public or private character. He is presented as the unanimous choice of the Democracy of a Democratic state. He comes here backed up by his delegation and by every Democrat in Indiana. There is no fire in his rear. We believe that if he is our nominee we can carry the State of Indiana by from twelve thousand to twenty thousand. [Cheers.] Determine for yourselves by your votes whether you want Indiana to remain Democratic or not. We propose to support the nominee of this convention whoever he may be. There is no diversity among us on that subject, but we would like to have a man for our candidate that we know we can carry the State for. In conclusion Mr President I desire to read the resolution that was adopted by the convention of the state at its last convention and with that, sir, I will close.

Resolved, That the people of Indiana recognize with pride and pleasure the eminent public services of the Hon Thos A Hendricks. In all public trusts he has been faithful to duty and in his public and private life pure and without blemish. We [illegible] declare that he is our unanimous choice for the Presidency of the United States.

Some one on the platform interrupting with a call for three cheers for Tilden, a delegate demanded and the sergeant pretended to eject him from his seat.

When New York was called there was great excitement, cheers and waving of fans. Senator Kernan expressed his sympathy with all that had been said of the gentlemen already presented here, but proceeded to urge the nomination of Tilden as the surest guarantee of success in the coming contest. Tilden's name was received with great cheers.

Senator Kernan spoke as follows: Mr President and Delegates of the National Convention of the United States—I desire to say to you that I rejoice and feel pleasure in every word which has been said in commendation of the distinguished men who have been presented to you for your support. They are my countrymen; they belong to the glorious party with which I act and no man would repel with more indignation, any word of insinuation to their detriment and no man feels more [illegible] than I do. But [illegible] fellow Democrats I appear before you to address my words feeble though they may be to your judgment, swayed by nothing but your love of country. The election which we are to have this fall rises far above the ordinary elections which we have. It is one in my judgment that touches the welfare and prosperity of our people throughout the entire Union. It is not a mere question of whether one honorable honest and upright man shall be elevated or another, but whether we shall select those men who are sure to carry the election in order that we may have the reform and change which are essential to our prosperity and our morals. Don't we need change and reform. You warm hearted men from the South who have been trampled down under this Constitution and who have been wronged as no people ever have [illegible] we need a restoration of proper administration by which you men in these States shall be allowed to manage your own affairs and shall be freed from the plundering adventurers who are eating up the substance of your people and taking from you all Republican government. [Applause.] Don't we need change and reform, you men throughout this fertile and glorious West [illegible] industry does [illegible] just reward [illegible] labor sees with [illegible] which labor should always [illegible] your industries paralyzed [illegible] even [illegible] we need it in my own section [illegible] the Union where our closed factories [illegible] distributed labor seek in vain for that which shall give bread to their wives and children. Oh we need reform that shall strike down taxation which shall lighten our burdens [illegible] the prosperity which honest [illegible] administration will give. We need reform which shall bring back purity and honesty and economy in the administration of our public affairs and my fellow Democrats I appeal to your intelligence [illegible]. The great issue which is in the minds of our people, the issue upon which [illegible] won—is that question of reform [illegible] administrative reform where we can get an [illegible] our candidate without any disrespect to other [illegible] select men who will command the entire confidence of our people as much as we can in reference to these questions of reform, economy and reduction of taxation. We all know the Republican party has resolved in 18[illegible] and 18[illegible] in language which we cannot excel that they [illegible] reform [illegible] the burden of taxation. [illegible] I know [illegible] that comes [illegible] administration [illegible] will take a man [illegible] and who will enter on [illegible] the northern [illegible] the position [illegible] matter [illegible] party [illegible] who had [illegible] the duty [illegible] me to bring [illegible] are wise men [illegible] man that will [illegible]. A leader [illegible] who have not been [illegible] the Democracy and [illegible] our claims [illegible] will sweep all [illegible] party vote. Now there is in the State where I come a Democrat who has the good fortune to be [illegible] in the position where these qualities have been exemplified. There [illegible] grew up in our Democratic city men who call themselves Democrats who under the guise of Democracy [illegible] our party by plundering the people whom they were bound to protect and [illegible] the citizens there and the one I shall name [illegible] with others overthrew these corruptionists in their own party and restored purity and economy and these men have been punished for their crimes. [illegible] He was elected as governor of our State. He came into the office on the 1st of January 1875. The direct taxes taken from our tax ridden people in the State of New York were over $15,000,000 in the tax levy of 1874. [Applause.] He has been in office eighteen months and the tax levy for the State of New York for the State treasury in this year 1876 is but eight millions of dollars. [Cheers.] If you go among our farming people, among our men who find business coming down and their produce bringing low prices you will find that they have faith in the man who reduced taxation in the State of New York in that eighteen months [applause] and you will hear the honest men throughout the country say they want a man who will do at Washington what has been done in the State of New York. Now do not misunderstand me. We have other worthy men and good men in the State of New York who if they had had the chance to discover the frauds in our State administration and along our canals which were thus depleting our people would have done the work faithfully. I doubt not. [illegible] it so happened that Samuel J Tilden—[loud and continued cheers]—but it so happened that the great Democratic party of the State of New York [illegible] this great benefit for our people and this great honor for our party because they elected [illegible] Tilden. When they found in the State of New York they had been [illegible] in reforming abuses it so happened that he was the man who by his measures [illegible]. I won't go on if any one objects but I use only one minute—[cries of go on—go on.] I want to add one word to my friends and it is this. I do not come here to vouch for my opinion but I read from the resolutions passed by the convention of the State of New York with [illegible] delegates from every Congressional district [illegible] vote—three—which is a part of the credentials which I lay before this convention. I want to give [illegible] what the representatives of the Democracy of New York said in their judgment [illegible] of the gentleman I have named. After passing by the recommendation of things passed that the Democratic party of New York while committing to their delegates the duty of joining with the feeling of their fellow Democrats in all the States in the nominations deliberations of the national convention declare their settled conviction that a return to the constitutional principles of frugal expenditure and the administrative purity of the founders of the Republic is the first and most imperious necessity of the times. This is the commanding issue now before the people of the Union and they suggest with respectful reference to their brethren of other States, and with certain appreciation of other renowned Democratic statesmen faithful like him to their political principles and public trust that the nomination of S J Tilden to the office of President would insure the vote of New York. [Cheers.]

A Delegate—There seems to be some geese in the hall. [Cries of "Clear the Galleries."] but with Kelly's first sentence complete order was restored until some one made the point that he was out of order unless he intended to second Tilden's nomination. Then ensued a long scene of confusion, hissing calls for "Kelly! Kelly!"

Hutchins, of Missouri insisted upon order. He expected to vote for Tilden but Kelly was entitled to be heard.

A delegate from Kansas demanded the scotching of the vipers who hiss. [Applause.]

Kelly persisted in his right to the floor until he had finished despite the efforts to interrupt him by calls of time and the failure of the Chair to enforce order.

Flournoy of Virginia seconded Tilden's nomination.

Herndon of Texas also seconded it.

General Brent of Louisiana seconded Hancock as did also Sexton of Texas.

Smith of Wisconsin seconded Tilden.

Clymer was introduced by the president and said:

Mr President and Gentlemen of the Convention: I am charged by the delegation from the State of Pennsylvania representing 325,000 Democrats to present in their name and by their authority as their unanimous choice for the highest elective office on earth the name of one born of the soil and dear to their hearts—the name of one whose character is the embodiment of that all is chivalrous in manhood and excellent in morals. The name of one who never drew his sword save in defense of his country and in the support of her laws, the name of one who in the hour of supreme victory never forgot a common brotherhood—the name of one who is the exemplar of grim visaged war and yet the sincerest devotee of the constitution and the law—the name of one who in the plenitude of absolute military power when dismembered, dismantled, and dishonored States were subjected to his arbitrary sway, and where the right of trial by jury, the habeas corpus, the liberty of the press, the freedom of speech, the national rights of persons and the rights of property must be preserved—with—name of one whose fame and reputation are dear to every American heart regardless of race, or color party or creed—the name of Winfield Scott Hancock. We present him to you as the very shibboleth of victory. None may doubt his honor and who will dare question his integrity. About him cluster the dying affections of tens of thousands who have watched with him at the camp fires, who have passed with him through the very shadow of death and whom he has led into the clear sunlight of victory, and there are other tens of thousands who have met him as foemen in battle array amid the roar of cannon and the blood and carnage of internecine strife, who never speak his name save in honor and to whom he is endeared by his justice and mercy, his devotion to the common wealth and by his regard and devotion to the constitution and law. His record in the past is his pledge for the future and we point to it with just pride and rely on it with unshaken faith. Standing on the banks of this mighty river here. In this imperial centre, we appeal to you, representatives of every portion of the Republic to unite with us in placing him as the choice of the Democracy. His is no sectional fame, his will be no sectional support and his will be no mere partisan victory. Everywhere good [illegible] voted to the constitution and the law—men who abhor fraud and denounce corruption—men who resist the centralization of power in the federal government—who would check extravagance and profligacy and would return to the habits of our [illegible] other men and purer laws—men who would rescue the federal government from those who have despoiled and disgraced it—men who would restore to the people of all the States their inestimable boon of home rule and local self government unawed by federal power—men who would [illegible] forth the miscreants and thieves who in nation and State have fattened on ill-gotten gains wrung from citizens and soldiers alike—men who desire to see trade revive and commerce prosper and who are unwilling that an unjust oppressive system shall be maintained at expense of the many for the benefit of the few by whom our industries have been crippled and want and misery suffering and almost universal bankruptcy have been brought to nearly every portion of the republic—all these men everywhere West as well as East North as well as South could and would unite with us in support of this [illegible], and in doing so we may double the result by his prowess. History will record the fact that he saved his native State and through her the union of States at Gettysburg, and if nominated here to-day history will record that in November next he will rescue his native State and thereby wrest the federal government from the hands of those who have disgraced and defiled it.

Doolittle earnestly urged prudence. He said he did not believe the Democrats could carry New York in November unless the [illegible]. [illegible] reason he favored Hendricks [illegible] carry Indiana as he [illegible].

The ballot being called for the [illegible] the roll for the first vote. When New Jersey was called the chairman [illegible] New Jersey [illegible] asked leave to cast [illegible] individual voting.

[illegible] New Jersey [illegible] Parker's [illegible].

The chair [illegible] for Parker. Before the vote was announced [illegible] changed her vote [illegible] 7 for Hendricks [illegible]. Before the vote was announced Missouri asked [illegible] result was announced. The chair ruled it was all [illegible]. Missouri asked five minutes for consultation. The tally clerks were fully ten minutes comparing their figures and in the meantime Missouri changed its vote to 16 for Tilden and 14 for Hendricks.

Six of the New Jersey delegates claimed their right to cast their individual votes for Tilden urging that the resolutions under which they acted did not bind them beyond the first vote.

A Virginia delegate complained that he had been [illegible] were on the floor at once [illegible]. North Carolina [illegible] 14 for Tilden [illegible].

While waiting for the announcement [illegible]. The excitement [illegible] by the music of bands. [illegible] States announced changes [illegible] Delaware's [illegible] for Tilden.

Pennsylvania moved [illegible] unanimous [illegible] as follows: Whole vote on the ballot was 738, necessary to choice [illegible]; Tilden [illegible]; Hendricks 60; Allen [illegible]; Parker 18; Hancock [illegible]; Bayard 11; Thurman [illegible].

[illegible] Pennsylvania's motion to make [illegible] unanimous was adopted.

A motion to adjourn until 10 to-morrow was carried.

Third Day.

St Louis 10 10 A M.—The chairman announces the next order of business will be the nomination of candidates for Vice President and the roll call [illegible]. Loud cheering.

[illegible] A M.—Gov. Harden of Maine names the unanimous nomination of Thos A Hendricks of Indiana.

10 [illegible] A M.—The secretary of the convention is now reading congratulatory dispatches received from all points.

10 [illegible] A M.—Convention called to order. Bishop Robinson of Missouri opening with prayer.

11 A M.—McDonald of Indiana withdraws the name of Hendricks. In withdrawing Hendricks he said he would leave the responsibility with the convention.

Gen Steadman of Ohio withdrew the name of H B Payne of Ohio and seconds the nomination of Hendricks.

McDonald of Indiana, is now speaking.

11 A M.—Roll call of States now going on voting for Vice President. The roll call has reached Illinois and every vote so far is cast for Hendricks but Indiana asks to have her vote passed for the present. Hendricks was unanimously nominated for Vice President on the first ballot.

The vote of States will be unanimous for Thos A Hendricks. Massachusetts votes for Hendricks. All other states vote for Hendricks. Not a vote for any other candidate. The call has reached Texas which votes solid for Hendricks. The vote is unanimous for Hendricks. Williams of Indiana, is now responding for Indiana.

11 35 A M.—Kelly submits to the action of the convention and pledges himself to work with a will for the election of Tilden and Hendricks.

All the votes were for Hendricks except eight blank votes in Ohio. This is the result of the first ballot.

Judge Hanna of Indiana has commenced speaking returning thanks for the great compliment and enthusiasm evinced for Indiana's favorite son.

Hendricks in reply to urgent telegrams to say he will accept the Vice Presidency leaves himself in the hands of his friends with the evident desire that they shall refuse to permit his nomination. The reason for this is believed to be that Hendricks knows he cannot carry Indiana in October in which event he would be charged with the responsibility for the Democratic defeat in November, instead of Tilden. There is a strong disposition among the Tilden men this morning to nominate Hendricks anyway unless he promptly withdraws, and thus force him to accept.

St Louis June 29.—The convention was called to order at 10 30 A M. The interest is evidently greatly abated and many delegates left leaving their alternates. The galleries contain few spectators. Prayer was offered by the Episcopal Bishop Roberts. The Chair announced several telegrams which were read, one from Sedalia Mo saying 100 guns had been fired for Tilden, and hopes Hendricks will be nominated for Vice President, another from Cincinnati, one from Maine and others approving, one from Jackson Miss pledging that State to the ticket, one from Mount Vernon Ill saying the nomination of Tilden is received with great enthusiasm and many others of similar character indorsing the platform and candidate, the reading of which elicited but little interest.

The chair announced the pending business to be the nomination of Vice President. When Indiana was called for its nomination the State was greeted with much enthusiasm. Indiana failing to present a candidate someone from his seat in the Illinois section nominated Hendricks, then McDonald of Indiana [illegible] and said the candidacy of Hendricks was ended yesterday. Indiana bowed to the decision yesterday in favor of another nominee but had no authority from Hendricks to accept the nomination for him to Vice Presidency. Indiana would [illegible] to-day but he implied doubts of the result in Indiana. The convention must take the responsibility.

Woodson of Missouri said his delegation instructed him to say Missouri was and the country would be on it for Tilden and Hendricks. [Cheers.] He urged Hendricks' nomination.

Wallace of Pennsylvania presented her united demand for Hendricks. He moved his nomination by acclamation.

Steadman of Ohio said his State wanted Henry B Payne, but they would not present him in view of the demand for Hendricks and seconded the motion to nominate Hendricks by acclamation.

Harlan of Missouri offered a resolution that it is the duty of this convention to select for Vice President one who is the peer of the Presidential nominee and that they believed Hendricks is this and that his duty to the party and country was to serve. We hereby nominate him.

Brown of Tennessee seconded Hendricks' nomination which would enable them to carry his State by 40,000. The delegates insisted on the [illegible] call of the roll which proceeded amid con[illegible].

Abbott of New Jersey said Hendricks was not properly [illegible] Indiana [illegible] of this [illegible] and Hendricks will not. He renewed [illegible] and the rules and nominate by acclamation. Lost.

Ballot—Michigan Hendricks 22, New Jersey 18, Minnesota 10, Missouri 30, New Hampshire 10, Kentucky 24, Louisiana 16, Iowa 22, Georgia 22, Florida 8, Massachusetts 26, Illinois 42, Kansas 10, Maine 14, Maryland 16, Mississippi 16, Nevada 6, Wisconsin 20, Arkansas 12, Nebraska 6, West Virginia 10, Virginia 22, Vermont 10, California 12, Colorado 6, Texas 16, Oregon 6, South Carolina 14, Tennessee 24, Pennsylvania 58, Rhode Island 8, Ohio [illegible], Blank 8, Delaware 6, New York 70, Connecticut 12, Alabama 20. Total 738. Hendricks 730. Blank 8. Hendricks was declared the nominee.

At the end of the roll call Indiana was called when Williams rose and said he was not authorized to say Hendricks will or will not accept. The Indiana delegation acquiesced, in view of this unanimous call. [Applause.]

Kelly of New York rose to address the chair [Applause—loud calls of Kelly! Kelly!] platform. He proceeded to the platform amid cheers. Kelly said there was no man here who worked more strenuously than himself against the nomination of Tilden because it was his conscientious belief that they could not carry the election with an eastern man. The convention has decided otherwise and he bowed to the decision and now he would work hard [illegible] for his election. He expressed his great admiration for Hendricks and confidence in his high pure character. He counseled the burial of all personal opinions and a concentrated effort for victory. He proceeded with some comments on the necessity for a change of national administration through Democratic success. He was frequently greeted with applause.

Hanna of Indiana thanked the convention for its expression of kindly feeling towards that State. [illegible] but now the [illegible] Democracy now come to the front. He [illegible] effort for success.

[illegible] of Nebraska offered a resolution commending all future Democratic conventions [illegible] two-third rule. [illegible].

The Chair said it was not in order now as the next business was to call the roll of States for the National committee. Alabama Walter L Bragg, Arkansas John J Sumpter, California Frank Mc[illegible], [illegible] H. Hughes, Connecticut [illegible], Delaware Robinson [illegible], Florida [illegible], Georgia Wm C Conley, Indiana [illegible], Iowa [illegible] Ham, Kansas [illegible], Kentucky H D McHenry, [illegible] Dowling, Maryland O Collins, Louisiana [illegible], Massachusetts [illegible], Michigan Edward [illegible], Minnesota Wm Lochran, Oregon Jno Whiteker, Nevada R P Keating, Nebraska [illegible] Miller, New York [illegible], New Jersey Miles Ross, New Haven A W [illegible], [illegible] Vanslyck, Tennessee Wm B Bates, South Carolina [illegible] Ryan, Mississippi [illegible] Barksdale, Vermont M H Smalley, Ohio John G Thompson, Pennsylvania Wm L Scott, Wisconsin [illegible], Virginia Alex Campbell, Texas [illegible].

Closing Scenes.

[illegible] of New York, offered a resolution [illegible] of this convention to the [illegible]. Brown of Tennessee offered a resolution [illegible]. [illegible] Rogers [illegible] Nebraska [illegible] New York [illegible].

Wetmor of Michigan offered a resolution recommending to future national Democratic conventions to abolish the two third [illegible] and that the states be represented [illegible] delegates [illegible] question and that at [illegible] the next convention. He spoke in favor of it and [illegible] opposed it.

The delegation from Tennessee moved to lay this on the table. The vote was taken by States and on this California voted yes, Colorado no, Kansas [illegible], 90 ayes, 1 nay, Nebraska no, Nevada 5 ayes 1 nay, New York no, New Jersey yes, Oregon [illegible] nays; Pennsylvania yes; [illegible] result [illegible] yeas [illegible] nays.

[illegible] resolution of thanks to President McLane [illegible] a resolution recommending [illegible] National Democratic [illegible] to allow delegates from the [illegible] was offered [illegible] secretary to provide [illegible] that the national committee [illegible] adopted.

Smiley of Vermont offered a resolution that the basis of holding the next National convention be [illegible] and that the basis of representation be the same as now.

The chair now stated that the vote would be taken on the question of adopting the resolution relative to the two third rule.

Wallace asked a division of the question omitting on the first vote the latter half requiring the states to instruct their delegates on the subject. It was for this latter proposition that the instructions from the convention to its successor. The convention refused to divide the question, and the resolution was adopted in whole.

McMichael offered a resolution pledging individual and united support of the nominees. Adopted.

Miller of Nebraska offered a resolution of thanks to Bell for his efficient services as recording secretary. [Applause.] Adopted.

Riley of Pennsylvania, moved a resolution of thanks to the directors of the St Louis Board of Exchange for use of their splendid hall for the convention, agreed to.

Kernan said he was directed by the New York delegation to present to the St Louis local committee a portrait of Tilden's, which had been hanging back of the president's chair, a token of their appreciation of their attention and hospitality.

At 12 30 on motion of Williams of Indiana, the convention adjourned.

It may be stated as a fact that the platform adopted to-day was almost entirely the work of Manton Marble.

How Tilden Received the News.

Albany June 29.—Tilden passed the day at the executive mansion surrounded by the members of his household. He received but few dispatches from St Louis and sent none there. This evening when the associated press bulletin dispatch, announcing the nomination of Tilden on the second ballot was received it was taken to the executive mansion. There were present with the Governor, Comptroller Robinson State Engineer Van Buren and four or five other friends. Mr Newell took the dispatch and read it aloud to the Governor. Is that [illegible] he inquired in the calmest tone without even a smile upon his countenance. Subsequently the following dispatch was received:

St Louis June 28.

Gov Tilden: I congratulate you on your enthusiastic nomination. Kentucky will heartily endorse you with her 40,000 majority.

JOHN C UNDERWOOD
Lieut Governor of Kentucky.

This was also read to the Governor who then exhibited signs of interest and inquired if any one knew what the vote was and what the platform contained. No one present could answer the question. The Governor then drew four or five of those present about him and in a tone scarcely above a whisper said: I can tell you what has been done. This nomination was not made by the leaders of the party. It was the people who made it and they want reform. They have wanted it for a long time and in looking about they have become convinced that it is to be found here, pointing to himself. They want it that is what they are after. They are sick of corruption and maladministration of their affairs. They want a change and for the better. A thorough reformation. Other dispatches were then received conveying congratulations from all parts of the country in the midst of which the Governor maintained an almost stolid imperturbability.

Albany June 29.—A number of citizens secured the services of a band of musicians and at 12 o'clock proceeded to the executive mansion. The Governor received them shaking hands with a large number and receiving congratulations. The crowd then retired to the grounds in front of his mansion when after repeated calls the Governor stepped to the door and said: Citizens of Albany—I thank you for this impromptu expression of your kind regards. During my residence in your city, the past two years I have received many like demonstrations, and assure you I feel grateful to you. At some other time I will be glad to give you a more formal reception and now will only say good night.

How the Nomination is Received.

Cincinnati June 28.—The news of the nomination of Tilden is received here with quiet satisfaction by the hard money and with undisguised disgust by the greenback wing of the party.

Indianapolis, June 28.—There is among Democrats a universal feeling of disappointment.

New York, June 29.—The Times' Washington special says that Speaker Sayler said it was rough on Ohio.

Southard is confident that the Ohio Democracy would make a strong fight for Tilden.

Landers who is conspicuous as an independent Democrat, said he would as soon have Hayes and Wheeler as Tilden or anybody else providing the Republicans would leave off stealing.

Blount and Chandler believe the Southern States will accept Tilden's success over Tammany as the best evidence of his deserving the united support of the Democracy.

Wells Clark and Kerr of Missouri, are confident that that State will give as great a majority for Tilden as for any man who has been named.

The President said he was more certain than ever Hayes would be elected though he was too long in the military service to underrate the powers of the enemy he hoped however, to turn over the keys of the White House to Hayes.

Yates Robbins and Waddell put down the old North state for 20,000 majority and a united delegation in Congress.

Lane said the most Northwestern State can be counted for Tilden by 1,500.

Warren and Thompson both exclaimed, "Don't it look as though the tidal wave of 1874 was to again sweep over New England?" That the Republicans had given up the East and count upon the West and Northwest territory for their strength with such Southern States as can be coerced by the bayonet.

Thurman says the ticket is a good one and when asked whether he had sent a congratulatory dispatch replied: What in the devil should I send a congratulatory dispatch for when I only received two votes.

Lamar said if the people wanted reform now is the chance for the nomination of an excellent leader incomparably superior to that of the Republican party.

Booth applauds the nomination as the best that could have been made.

The World's Washington special says: "It will be an up hill fight in Ohio" said a gentleman to Paine. "Oh we have no show in Ohio" replied Paine, "but we were beaten in Ohio any way. We should have reasoned foolishly and wasted our strength in an attempt to carry Ohio. What we must do is to carry New York and Indiana. Tilden is a most certain to carry Ohio and if Hendricks will take the second place we shall carry Indiana. It is certainly the best nomination we could make and the currency plank is all right."

"It suits us" said Gen Hunton, "and Tilden can count on a united South."

Tucker cordially assented as also to the sentiment that St Louis had named the next President.

Neale who has caused more dissention among the Democrats on the money question than almost any other man here this winter announced that he shall bolt the ticket and vote for Hayes.

The nomination will lose the Democrats two Congressmen in Ohio, Savage and McMahon of that State say they shall not run again, but outside of these a few like them talk gloomily of a separate inflation ticket. The almost universal sentiment is that Tilden's nomination is the best. It insures New York Connecticut New Jersey and Oregon, that with Hendricks Indiana can be carried and that there is a good chance of carrying Wisconsin, California, Massachusetts and possibly New Hampshire. There is no such revolution in feeling here as there was upon the announcement of the nomination of Hayes, but everywhere earnest satisfaction among Democrats and an evident feeling of anxiety among Republicans.

The Tribune's Washington special says: Morton says the ticket will be the weakest that could have been made. Both gentlemen, he said, were violent Southern sympathizers during the war and he thought their financial theories could not be harmonized. Those in Indiana who have worked for Hendricks for the first place would not have zeal to work faithfully for him as second to a man like Tilden. He says Hayes and Wheeler would carry Indiana by at least 10,000. He was sure also of New York and Ohio.

[illegible] June [illegible].—The news of Hendricks' nomination as Vice President has made happy the hearts of the Democrats of the [illegible] district of Iowa. The strength of Hendricks will add to Tilden and the platform heals up all harsh feelings existing on the previous nomination and all are satisfied and express congratulatory remarks over the triumphant ticket in the field.

Opinions of the Press.

Cincinnati June [illegible].—The Enquirer speaking of the nomination of Tilden says: The [illegible] which will fall heavily upon Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and other Western States. There will be a revulsion all [illegible] the party [illegible] Tilden [illegible] and shall advise the Democratic organ[illegible].

New York June [illegible].—The Staats Zeitung [illegible].

The [illegible] says: It has been evident Tilden would be nominated for a long time past [illegible]. We care not for party [illegible] from the evil and dangers which threaten the country. The nomination can not fail to excite in every part of the country the most hearty and hopeful enthusiasm. We admit no doubt of its success.

The Herald says: It must be conceded by friends and enemies alike that Tilden has proved himself one of the ablest and most astute managers that ever appeared in American politics. Having never held but one important office he lacks the Washington experience of Thurman, Hendricks and Bayard. [illegible] nomination therefore is a tribute to his character [illegible] and he may be proud whether he wins or not. His nomination is not equivalent to election. He will have a hard battle. Still the country has reason to congratulate itself [illegible] the platforms of both parties are so excellent that whether Hayes or Tilden be elected the country is equally sure of good government.

The World says: "Cincinnati gave the nation a candidate without purpose, a platform without a meaning. St Louis responds with a candidate whose name is a symbol of reform upon a platform which means a beautiful revolution in the conduct of the government. The Democratic party had a score of candidates, men like Thurman, Bayard, Parker, Allen, Hendricks and English, tried and proven in high public trusts and devoted to the principles of Democratic honesty and loyalty to law. The enemies of the Democratic party have toiled and toiled for months to identify the name of Tilden alone with Democratic reform and foolish friends of Tilden blindly helped on this work. It was possible that it might be found necessary to select some other candidate at St Louis and then we should have had uphill work to show that name meant what our enemies have saved us the trouble of proving. The name of Tilden means that now the way is clear. The Republicans made Bristow reform for them and Tilden means reform for the Democrats. Cincinnati trampled the name of Bristow under foot. St. Louis sets the name of Tilden in letters of light on the banners of a united Democracy."

The Times says: Whoever may be dissatisfied with the choice of Tilden, Republicans have no cause to find fault with it. The nomination means that the Democrats have abandoned in advance all hope of carrying the October States and place their reliance on a solid South with the addition of New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and the Pacific States. New York will change the result either way, hence the Democrats deliberately selected that State as the battle ground. In spite of the bitter feud in their party here and of the defeat of two successive New Yorkers for President, they have again staked every thing on carrying New York. With a fortune gathered from the spoils of bankrupt railroads, and a reputation gained by a halting and half hearted struggle on behalf of honest government, Tilden is a fair representative of the best his party can offer for reform and the utmost it can do for statesmanship. The writer says Tilden's life is full of shifts and evasions. There is much yet to be told which will be done during the canvass, convincing any unprejudiced person that the best they can do is to defeat him. The Times has no doubt of Hayes' election.

The Tribune says the convention fought bitterly but briefly and after filling all St. Louis bar-rooms with riot for two or three days has placed an admirable candidate upon a bad platform. It was wise to nominate the strongest man. Whichever side wins, we shall have a President of high personal character, excellent record, honest sympathies and associations. Tilden's course has made him the representative of honesty. His nomination cost a struggle that nearly tore the party in two, but it is the party behind the President which rules, and Tilden's is full of rascality and deceit. The Tribune has no reasonable doubt of Hayes' election.

New York, June 29.—It is said the Evening Express will endorse Tilden.

Dispatches from the State of New York and the East state the nomination was received with favor, but in the West much chagrin and the [illegible] talked bolting.

The Times editorial says: To-morrow is the last day of the official year. There is yet nothing but a vague expectation that some of the [illegible] important bills may be got through and for even this vague expectation, there is no apparent basis. The Democrats at St. Louis are engaged in demanding [illegible] of the national faith while the Democrats in Washington are trying to force political [illegible] through the Senate under a threat of stopping the wheels of government. In 48 hours consequences of the most serious, not to say disastrous, character will ensue unless their crazy obstinacy can be broken down. Certainly a more disgraceful exhibition of reckless partisanship never was made in the United States.

Escape of the Fenians.

San Francisco, June 29.—A number of passengers by the steamer Australia from Sydney, deny there is any truth whatever in the report that Fenian prisoners had escaped in an American whaler from Western Australia. The Sydney Herald of May 22, however states that news received in Melbourne by the mail steamer Bangalore is to the effect that a boat of the Catalapa apparently by previous arrangement took off prisoners and the ship put to sea. The mail steamer Georgette was sent in pursuit and overtook the Catalapa, but as the Georgette was not a ship of war she was defied and returned without the prisoners who were seen standing on the Catalapa's deck.

Run Over and Injured.

San Francisco June 29.—Catherine Hen[illegible]man, aged 68 years, while crossing Mission street, near Fifth this afternoon, with her little grandchild in her arms, was run over by a Bobtail car receiving injuries of which she died a few hours later. The child was slightly hurt. The driver, W. H. F[illegible], was locked up on a charge of murder.

An Interesting Question.

A few days ago Samuel Ryan, an American seaman, who arrived here from South America on the Italian bark Anita Delfina, had the boatswain of the vessel arrested on a charge of striking him with a handspike, but the case was dismissed on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction, the offense having been committed on the high seas. It afterwards appeared that the affair occurred this side of the Farrallones, and Judge Louderback, of police court, to-day issued a warrant for the arrest of the boatswain, who is now in confinement. The case promises to be an interesting question, the Farrallones being within the jurisdiction of the police court while the point will come up whether the intervening open sea also is included.

A New Paper.

A new paper to be styled the Oakland Daily Evening Enterprise will appear early next week.

The Nomination.

The Democratic nominations were received here with less enthusiasm than those of the Cincinnati convention. Both parties seem well satisfied that the tickets are the strongest that could have been made, and each expresses confidence in the result of the election.

Santa Cruz, June 29.—Tilden's nomination is well received here by the Democrats, and is acknowledged by the opposition to be a very strong one. The nomination of Hendricks for the second place, also gives much satisfaction.

Los Angeles June 29.—The nomination of Tilden and Hendricks gives complete satisfaction to the Democrats of this section.

San Diego June 29.—The nominations are well received here by the Democrats and admitted to be strong by the Republicans.

Cropping interests are progressing satisfactorily so far as yield is concerned. New wheat is coming into market.

The war on silver continues. Mexican dollars have been valued by the chamber of commerce at 90 cents.

All quiet on the border. Nothing tangible as yet as to the new order of the Mexican Government raising the tariff from goods going into California.

River improvements stopped for advices from Washington.

NEVADA

Tilden's Nomination Satisfactory.

Virginia, June 29.—The news of the nomination of Tilden was received by the Democrats with satisfaction but with no enthusiasm. There have been no public manifestations of joy. To-morrow night there will be a ratification meeting with speeches &c. Republicans are betting heavily against Tilden and in favor of Hayes.

DECISION IN U S CIRCUIT COURT, BY JUDGE DEADY

U S Circuit Court—District of Oregon

WEDNESDAY JUNE 14 1876

W T Wythe v Jannette Smith—Action to recover possession of real property

The wife's share of the donation made by the act of September 27 1850 was not her separate estate and the act of January 30 1852 which undertook to declare it so, so far as prior settlements were concerned was void.

By virtue of the marriage the husband took an estate for the life of himself and wife in the latter's half of the donation claim and it was not in the power of the Territorial legislature to divest him of this estate although they might exempt it from execution.

What constitutes an estoppel in pais?

Equitable estoppels in pais cannot be set up as a defence to an action at law to recover the possession of real property.

The Oregon statute of limitations upon actions to recover real property does not run against a woman to whom the right to sue accrues during coverture until the removal of the disability—and this, whether the action concern her separate property or otherwise.

DEADY, J.

This action is brought to recover the possession of lot 4, in block 5, in the town of Salem. The complaint alleges that the plaintiff is a citizen of California, and the defendant of Oregon, that the plaintiff is the owner in fee simple of the premises and entitled to the possession thereof, and that the defendant unlawfully withholds the same from him, to his damage $[illegible].

The answer of the defendant denies all the material allegations of the complaint, except the citizenship of the parties, and alleges that she is the owner in fee of a certain described part of the premises, for which alone she defends.

The answer also contains a plea of estoppel, to the effect that the plaintiff ought to be precluded from alleging that he is the owner of and entitled to the possession of the premises because (1) That whatever claim of title the plaintiff has to the premises is derived through certain mesne conveyances from Chloe A. Willson, who on May 7, 1852 with a knowledge that the premises were a part of a donation claim, one-half of which belonged to her in her own right, made no objection to the sale of said lot 4, to Joseph Smith by the [illegible] of Nancy M. Thornton, who [illegible] to be the owner of the [illegible] by [illegible] of a conveyance thereof by William A. Willson, the husband of said Chloe A., to said Nancy M., the consideration of which inured to the [illegible] of said Chloe A., (2), That in 1852 said Smith sold said lot 4 to J[illegible] Holman and "said Chloe A., having a knowledge of her rights and of the sale" made no objection [illegible] but acquiesced in the same, (3), That in 1853 said Chloe A with a like knowledge of her rights in the premises, [illegible] to L. F. Grover that said Holman was the owner of said lot and advised and [illegible] Grover to purchase the same from said Holman as a suitable place for a law office, and that said Grover was [illegible] by [illegible] to make said purchase and afterwards relying [illegible] such representations expended a sum of money in building a law office on the part of said lot claimed by defendant; (4), That in May, 1856, when said Chloe A. had knowledge of the fact, that said lot was within her half of said donation, said [illegible] the same to said Holman with the knowledge of said Chloe and without objection on her part, and that under like circumstances said Holman on December 5, 1856, conveyed the same to said Grover (5), That on July 2, 1861, the defendant purchased of said Grover for the sum of $1,000 the part of said lot for which she now defends with the [illegible] of said Chloe A., and without [illegible] on her part, and that she [illegible] said lot up to [illegible] of her death in 1875.

The answer concludes with a plea of the statute of limitations, that the [illegible] nor those under whom he claims have not been seized or possessed of the premises [illegible] within 20 years before the commencement of the action January 3, 1876. The plaintiff demurs to the whole answer, to the plea of estoppel and the statute of limitations conjunctively and to the latter separately.

In support of the plea of estoppel counsel for the defendant insists that the wife of a settler under the Donation Act of 1850, had a legal and separate estate in the portion of the donation enuring to her, and that [illegible] she could convey it, or by her acts in pais estop herself to assert her title to it, as if she were a femme sole. That the wife's interest in the donation is a legal one, there can be no doubt. It is granted to her by the act directly and unqualifiedly, to be held by her in her own right. No trust is declared concerning it, and no trustee or third person is interposed between her and the ownership of the property.

By the common law which was in force in Oregon at the passage of the Donation Act, real property, however acquired by the wife, was transferred to her husband during their joint lives, leaving only the reversion in her. But in case where the instrument or act, by which the property was conveyed to the wife, provided that it should be for her sole or separate use and benefit, equity interfered, and while admitting that, by virtue of the marriage, the present ownership of the property passed to the husband, notwithstanding the words of exclusive use to her in the deed, treated and held him as a trustee of the estate thus vested in himself for the use and benefit of the wife. This constituted what was called a separate estate in the wife. It was the creation of equity, and the expression separate estate of a married woman—always [illegible] to an equitable estate held by the husband or a third person in trust for her. Bishop's M. W. § 794 et seq.

As has been stated, the wife's share of the donation was a legal estate granted to her by apt and ordinary words of conveyance, in which the husband, by virtue of the marriage, immediately took a freehold estate. It is not claimed that the Donation Act imposed any trust upon this estate in the hands of the husband, or charged his conscience with the duty of administering it for the separate benefit of the wife, so as to make it in equity her separate estate, unless such is the effect of the words—"to be held by her in her own right." As I understand the argument of the learned counsel for the defendant, it is not contended that these words make the property her separate estate in equity as above described or that any trust was imposed upon it in favor of the wife by this or any other provision of the Donation Act. But it is maintained that this property was in fact some sort of "a separate estate" of the wife's because the grant to her provided that it was "to be held by her in her own right."

Is such the natural or possible effect of this phrase, or does the use of it in this connection manifest any intention upon the part of Congress to keep this grant to the wife out of the ordinary rule which gave the husband a present freehold in the wife's real property however acquired?

A woman is said to hold property in her own right when she does not derive it from her husband, and a man is said to hold property in the right of his wife when his interest in it arises [illegible] marriage with her. The expression is an [illegible] and vague one and no instance has been shown in which it has been used to exclude or limit in any degree the marital rights of the husband in the real property of the wife. It is not clear why the words were used in the Donation Act, and the probability is, that like other expressions contained in it, they were inserted without much consideration. My impression is that they were placed in the act upon some vague apprehension, that as the whole section was first granted to the settler—the husband—and on account of his services upon the land, without them, it might be claimed that the wife instead of taking directly from the United States derived title through the husband as his wife—held in his right by virtue of the marriage, instead of her own, and that therefore the property might be in some way liable for his prior debts, contracts and obligations. To exclude this conclusion—to avoid this possible doubt or danger—it seems probable that these words were inserted immediately after the clause qualifying the grant so that

FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 30, 1876.

HAYES AND WHEELER OR TILDEN AND HENDRICKS.

Hayes and Wheeler, or Tilden and Hendricks—that is the question. From now till the election day in November, little else will be heard in the way of politics. Whatever can be said to the injury or to the credit of any of these four, will be said over and over again with amplification and coloring suited to the purpose and occasion. The temper of the public mind is such just at this time as to invite a personal campaign. The character of the man will have greater weight than at any time heretofore for over a quarter of a century in determining the votes of the people. The great majority, it is true, will vote upon party issues, but there will be a minority large enough to signify much in the ultimate result, who will take into consideration other facts besides that of the party nomination.

And what of the men? Hayes and Wheeler—especially the former—have occupied such positions before the country, of late, that any act of theirs which could be criticised with effect would be paraded before the public gaze. Nothing has been brought out casting the least shadow on the name of either of them. Hayes has passed through a campaign in Ohio in which nothing was left unsaid which an unscrupulous opposition could say against him, and he came out of the ordeal without the smell of fire upon his garments. That furnishes reasonable assurance that the Republican candidate is above reproach, and that his friends need have no fears of the attacks of the opposition.

Tilden, what of him? There is a divided sentiment touching his political life, but his private character, so far as we are advised, is unimpeachable. He is an old time Democratic politician of New York—certainly not the highest recommendation. His admirers, so far as he has admirers outside his party, are mainly people who do not live in his State. There he has little credit for all his efforts to purge the public service of the plunderers who have preyed upon the people of the State so long. He does the work of a reformer, but gets only the credit of a politician. And the opposition inside the party, though it is suppressed by the fact of his nomination, will in all probability prove quite embarrassing to him. Tammany is opposed to him, and Tammany is not to be despised in a State where the balance between the two parties hangs so nearly even as in New York.

As we remarked, Tilden will get little or no support from the Liberals in his own State. The prejudices of 35 years of political life do not melt down in a day. The Liberals of New York remember "Tammany Tilden" as an enemy of the olden time and a leader of the party which they opposed on principle; and they will carry these prejudices with them to the polls. In New York, therefore, the Republicans will be united on Hayes, while there is much room to believe the Democrats will not be fully united. This [illegible]es it improbable Tilden will carry New York; and it is conceded generally, that his election is out of the question unless he can carry New York. Personally, Hayes is very strong at home, and has the confidence of the people throughout the Union. Personally, Tilden commands the respect of people outside his State, but is weak at home. Hayes will lose no considerable number of votes that any Republican could get. Tilden will lose many Democratic votes which would be cast for Bayard were he the nominee. Thinking people of all parties will, perhaps, agree that the Democrats have nominated their best man; but all will not agree that they have selected the man among them who will receive the greatest number of votes.

HARMONIOUS DEMOCRACY.

In politics harmony is a condition precedent to success. A party may be harmonious and still unsuccessful, but without harmony failure is sure. These reflections are attributable to the report of the proceedings of the Democratic National Convention. That body astonished the whole country by the extraordinary unanimity of feeling prevailing among its members. Several passages in the telegraphic report of the proceedings hinted a state of unanimity and brotherly love among the representatives of the faithful which could not but cheer the hearts of all lovers of the dear old party. For instance, see how nicely everything moved on when Kelly, the Tammany boss, was engaged in delivering before the convention his great speech on Tilden. In order that our readers may enjoy the scene referred to as we have enjoyed it, we give the report somewhat at length:

Mr. Kelly—Mr. Chairman: I wish that I could convince myself of what has been said by the senator from the State of New York in relation to the candidate that he has named to this convention for their support. I, like him, am anxious, hopeful, prayerful, that we should regenerate this country from the thraldom which now—

A Delegate—Mr. Chairman: Is the gentleman seconding the nomination made by the gentleman from New York? [Cries of "Kelly!" "Kelly!" and confusion.]

The Chair—Who can tell but what the gentleman has some other name to put in nomination? He has a right to speak in his own time.

A Delegate—Unless the gentleman is up there to second the nomination of Tilden, he is out of order.

The Chair—I have not understood for what purpose the gentleman has arisen yet. [Cries of "Kelly!" and confusion and hisses].

Mr. Kelly—Mr. Chairman, I was saying to you and to this convention [more hisses], but I believe the candidate that can best meet the condition of things [hisses]

Mr. Hutchins of Missouri—I move you, sir, that the President instruct the sergeant-at-arms to remove from the floor any man, who is not a delegate, who seeks to interrupt the speaker [Cheers.]

The Chair—The chair will see that he is so instructed.

Mr. Hutchins—I will cast my vote for the gentleman against whom I know he is opposed, but I intend that he shall have fair play. [Cheers].

Mr. Davis of Kansas—I think it is a matter of very great propriety to scathe these vipers who hiss when gentlemen are up to speak.

The Chair—I hope the sergeant-at-arms will attend to these gents who exercise their lungs in hissing.

Mr. Kelly—I was going to say to you, Mr. Chairman, and to the members of the convention, [hisses.]

A Delegate from New York—It is the unanimous wish of the delegation from the State of New York that the gentleman be heard [More hisses and confusion.]

Mr. Wood, of New York—I ask in behalf of the majority of the delegation who are opposed in opinion to Mr. Kelly, that he should have a respectful hearing before this body. [More confusion and hisses.]

Kernan, of New York—Mr. President: I appeal to every friend of the State of New York to give my colleague on the delegation a hearing. All good comes out of that and no evil. [Cries of "good."] All I ask is that every man talk before the nomination and after the nomination let all go in for the nominee. [Cheers.]

Breckinridge, of Kentucky—I desire to raise the point of order. I do not desire that the gentleman from New York shall not be heard for sir, I am for fair play and a free fight. [Cries of order.]

The President—The gentleman has the floor and will not be interrupted.

Mr. Breckinridge—The point of order I desire to make, is this [Great confusion.]

Mr. Kelly, resuming—Mr. Chairman, I believe the man to meet the exigencies of this case is Thos. A. Hendricks of Indiana [cheers], and while I believe so, I feel convinced.

Mr. Breckinridge—Mr. Chairman, I have a right to state my point of order. It is a right I have as a delegate. [Cries of "Sit down," and Kelly.]

The President—State your point of order.

Mr. Breckinridge—The point of order I desire to make is for the Chair to decide whether the discussion on the merits of candidates is in order. If so, whether other gentlemen can be heard beside the gentleman from New York; whether it shall be an open discussion for other gentlemen who choose to enter in it and take part in it? That is all I want. [Cries of "Kelly."] Is the point of order well taken?

Mr. Kelly—I believe I have the floor, Mr. Chairman, and in view—

The Chairman to Mr. Breckinridge—You can be heard in reply.

Mr. Kelly—I believe that, in view of the election that will take place in October next in Indiana and Ohio, if that nomination was given to the Western people, we could have one or both of those States. [Cheers.] I believe that, if you are beaten in those States, it is an utter impossibility to save New York [Cheers, and that is so.] You gave the nomination in 1864 to the State of New Jersey, to a gentleman who did this country good service in the late war. Now, gentlemen, you will recollect that that candidate was beaten in 1864. You also favored New York's gallant son, Seymour—a man respected from Maine to California, wherever his name is mentioned—one whose long iden ity with Democracy makes him, in the mouths of the followers of that party, a household word. Again, in 1872, you gave the nomination to another New Yorker. Both of these candidates were beaten, and you will recollect that in both and in all three cases the States of Indiana and Ohio were lost. Now, you propose to repeat the errors that have been committed for the last twelve years [cheers] by again taking another New York man. Now, it might appear to this convention that I was only present opposing Mr. Tilden's nomination. [Three cheers for Tilden.]

A Delegate—I rise to a point of order, and ask that the sergeant at-arms be instructed to expel the man who proposed three cheers for Tilden. [Great confusion, and cries of "Put him out!" "No! no!"]

Several delegates rose to their feet and pointed to the man referred to, requesting the sergeant-at-arms to expel him, while others shouted "No!" The sergeant-at-arms admonished the gentleman but did not remove him.

Mr. Kelly—Members of this convention, do not be blinded by your passions, but be led by your reason, for if you are beaten in the coming canvass it is the party's burial. [Applause.] I believe sincerely that it will also result in the destruction of your government. Is not it then your duty to act cautiously and prudently? Do not be carried away by any affection that you may have for Samuel J. Tilden in this convention. You may have cause to regret this nomination when you have made it, if you do make it. [Cries of "Tilden," and great confusion.] I was going to say that there are now sitting there in that New York delegation a very respectable majority who agree with me that it would be a very fatal policy for the Democratic party to pursue at this time. [Renewed confusion.] Their mouths are stifled, their tongues are closed within their mouths. They can say nothing here of the action that was taken. A majority of that delegation, if they were allowed to speak, would tell you that sitting directly in front of me there are fifty-seven delegates who are opposed to Tilden's nomination, [applause] not on personal or political grounds, not in malice, not in anything that would characterize our opinion as against our judgment, but because they believe in their hearts and souls that if this convention nominates Tilden as their candidate for President they will regret it to [last part of the sentence was lost in the confusion] Mr. Chairman—I am a member of that delegation. On the part of myself and them, I protest against his nomination, because we know and feel that disaster would come upon our great party if that thing be done. Mr. Chairman—I hope that this convention will reason upon this matter in cool judgment. I hope that they will look upon it as sensible men. Recollect what I have already said to the members of this convention, that if we are beaten in the West in October, undoubtedly we will be beaten in the East. Now, in conclusion, I thank the members of this convention for the hearing they have given me.

BUY A "PLUMMER"

FAMILY DRYER.

WE ARE NOW RECEIVING A LARGE NUMber of orders for these Dryers. We manufacture six different sizes of the Circular kind and two of the new Upright kind, patented Jan 18, 1876. For $200 we guarantee to do one fourth as much work as a $2 000 Alden Dryer; and for $600 we guarantee to do as much as any Alden Dryer in this State. We also guarantee to do as good work as the Alden, as our Fruit has been thoroughly tested and pronounced No. 1, selling readily in this market at as good figures as the Alden. Now, if you let your fruit rot this year it is your own fault, as the price is within the reach of all.

Send in your orders immediately, as the season is upon us, and we will soon have the golden harvest and rebuke this Alden monopoly, and buy Dryers manufactured in your own State, where you can see the parties who manufacture them.

TO THE CITIZENS OF PORTLAND.

The Centennial executive committee desire to report that full and complete arrangements have been perfected for the celebration during the coming week and that the programme as published will be fully carried out in every detail. In relation to the same we desire to make some recommendations Firstly we would respectfully suggest to the pastors of the various churches the propriety of holding services appropriate to the anniversary in their respective churches, on Sunday July 2d Secondly, we would earnestly request our citizens to have especial care in the use of fire works and to take every precaution against fire Thirdly, we would urge property owners in the flooded district to remove all obstructions and have the streets placed in good order at the earliest practicable moment, and, fourthly, we beg to assure every one that the city has been for a long time past and is now, entirely free from any and all infectious diseases, and that Dr Dodd, the health officer at Astoria, at the instance of the committee, is taking extraordinary precaution to guard against the introduction of such diseases into the State.

We desire and solicit the hearty co operation of the citizens in our efforts to make this celebration an entire success, and one worthy of the city of Portland By order of the committee

BRIEF NOTES.

Races to-morrow.

Circus to morrow.

The glorious Fourth is now in space

Everything will be Centennial next week

The trial of Milton Sheparson has been concluded at length

The present flood has had almost disastrous effect on the rat crop

Presented to the Portland Library by Col J R Farrish the American Newspaper Directory for 1876

In some localities of the city where the water has began to recede the stench arising is intolerable

Nocturnal warblers make night hideous with their plaintive (?) music while they skim over the placid bosom of the river these pleasant evenings

We dearly love music but the fellow who persists in performing every night near our den on an asthmatic accordeon in an open boat has our most benign maledictions

In many places the temporary footways along the streets have been taken away as the water has disappeared from the sidewalks The pedestrianating public heartily concur

No Chinese bombs, firecrackers or any description of fire works will be permitted to be discharged on the 4th between the hours of 10 A M and 2 P M Persons violating this order will be subject to arrest

Several new flagstaffs have recently been raised in East Portland from the tops of which proudly float the "Flag of Liberty" all of which indicate that the fires of patriotism are burning brightly on the altars or words to that effect

The Evening Journal assumes a virtuous indignation over the recent action of the Chief of Police in prohibiting the discharge of firecrackers on the Fourth between the hours of 10 A and 4 P M This is the first time that our cotemporary has openly championed the cause of hoodlumism

The evening paper states that they have been reliably informed that Maj Campbell who lately had command of the District of Alaska has been sued by a man named Waters for damages in the sum of $25 000 for unjustly and without cause imprisoning Waters in the military jail at Sitka

SUBSIDENCE OF THE FLOOD

During the past five days there has been a decided recedence of the flood Last Sunday the water began slowly to subside and from that date to the present writing, the movement has been continuous downward The Columbia at the Dalles and other points, has fallen probably two feet since the water began to subside and at this place the river has gone down 16 inches This fall has drawn off a vast quantity of water from all the submerged districts of the city, and many of the places which seven days ago were under water have been left bare and dry Front street from Morrison down, is still inundated, but a good portion of First has become free from water Before two days shall have elapsed there is every reason to hope that that thoroughfare will be left entirely bare At the present rate at which the water is receding the river will have contracted to its accustomed channel before a week There is a general feeling of relief experienced since the waters began to subside, and business will soon be resumed where the hum of industry has been silent for the past ten days or more

DYSPEPSIA—This disease is now cured by our medical fraternity with Triple Crown Noble Whisky prescribed in small doses taken at frequent intervals—Journal of Health

If you have no spare cash to invest in tickets to the Philadelphia Centennial stay at home and enjoy your own You can see big sights and buy clothing equally as cheap at Kohn's Emporium, First and Morrison streets He keeps his stock full and of the best.

W L ADAMS, M D, A M LL D, corner of First and Salmon streets, is curing the most inveterate chronic diseases of all kinds at a low price, by medicated electric lightning cream baths and by combining the German and French with the American improved practice mixed with a little common sense His treatment is, in the main entirely original and works almost miracles, as his numerous patients will attest A lady always in the office to assist in treating women.

POND'S EXTRACT.—Never have we heard or heard of even a single instance of dissatisfaction This we ascribe to the care that has always been taken to claim no more for the Remedy than it would certainly perform

On the other hand new facts are being elicited of its curative virtues in new directions These "new facts" are recited in numerous letters we have received, volunteered by a host of correspondents professional and lay who have been prompted solely by the surprise and gratitude they have experienced or witnessed from the use of POND'S EXTRACT

Toothache proceeds from decay in the face operating upon the exposed nerve of a decayed tooth Rub the gum thoroughly with the finger wet with Johnson's Anodyne Liniment heat the face well and lap a flannel wet with the liniment on the face also put a little of the liniment into the cavity of the tooth on cotton

The system frequently gets out of order and should be at once regulated else other troubles will ensue when physic is needed take Parsons' Purgative Pills they are a safe, wholesome, and natural medicine.

CLOSING ARGUMENT—JUDGE'S CHARGE AND VERDICT

The court convened at 9 o clock promptly and Mr Mallory resumed his closing argument for the prosecution occupying two hours and a half in the discussion of the case At half past 11 o clock the court took a recess until 1 P M at which time the court proceeded to instruct the jury as to the law governing the case The charge which the judge delivered standing consumed two hours and twenty minutes, and was listened to with breathless attention by the jury and the parties interested In concluding the charge the judge instructed the jury that the general verdict must be one of "not guilty," as the prosecution of the crime was barred by the statute of limitations He also stated that the jury might in addition to the general verdict of not guilty pass upon and return into court their finding upon the following question Did the defendant on the 12th day of July 1872 at Antelope canyon in the district of Oregon rob the United States mail, one Al [illegible] being then and there in lawful custody of said mails as charged in the indictment

THE VERDICT

The jury retired at half past 4 and the court took a recess to await the verdict In a short time the bailiff reported the jury and they were brought in to court and returned a verdict substantially in these words We the jury find the defendant guilty as charged in the indictment but acquit him on the ground of the statute of limitations This verdict upon its face being contrary to the law as given by the court to the jury, the jury were again sent out, and after another short season of deliberation brought in a general verdict of not guilty and an affirmative answer to the question as to the commission by defendant of the crime charged in the indictment

JUDGE DEADY'S DECISION.

the donation, instead of going wholly to the husband, should pass one half to the wife. It being provided that the wife should be considered as holding in her own right and not in right of her husband, this would preclude the conclusion that she claimed through or under him, and therefore the property would be possessed by her and descend upon her death, the same as if inherited from her father or other ancestor. To hold or be seised of property in your own right is not incompatible with the use being in another. Seizure and use are not identical, and the seizure may be in one person and the use in another. A feoffee to use held or was seized in his own right, but to the use of another. The seizure or holding relates to the acquiring of the title and the use, to the purposes for which it shall be held. Here the wife held or was seized in her own right, but not to her own separate or sole use and benefit, and therefore she had no separate estate in the property. As soon as she became seized, by reason of the marriage, the law cast upon the husband an estate in the premises for their joint lives. Bishop's M. W., § 535.

But it is also claimed that this property became the separate estate of the wife by operation of the act of the territorial legislature of January 20, 1852, entitled, "An act to exempt the wife's portion of lands donated in Oregon territory, by act of Congress, approved September 27, 1850, from the debts and liabilities of her husband." This act provided, "That all right and interest of the wife, both legal and equitable, in and to the land donated to settlers in Oregon territory, by an act of Congress approved September 27, 1850, both now and hereafter, be and hereby is [illegible] to the sole and separate use and control of the wife, and such interests in said lands, both legal and equitable of the wife, and the rents and profits thereof, shall in no wise be made subject or liable for the debts or liabilities of her husband, whether contracted before or after the passage of this act." This act was repealed January 30, 1854, by the general repealing act of the code of that year. As appears from the title, the intention of the act was to exempt the wife's portion of the donation "from the debts and liabilities of her husband," and this [illegible] was the leading idea in its enactment. The language used is not accurate, but the purpose of it is apparent. It was not intended to exempt the reversion—the interest which remained in the wife notwithstanding the marriage—from the husband's debts and liabilities, but only the husband's present interest in the property. This interest or marital right of the husband was a freehold and liable to be taken on execution and sold to satisfy his debts. Bishop's M. W., § 585; Starr v. Hamilton, 1 Deady, 272. But to exempt the husband's interest in the wife's donation from execution, did not divest him of such interest or invest the wife with it, in any way. But the body of the act in addition to exempting the husband's interest in the wife's donation from execution, did declare that "the right and interest of the wife" in such donation "is hereby [illegible] to the sole and separate use and control of the wife."

At the date of this act all the right and interest "of Chloe A. Willson in her share of her husband's donation was simply the reversion [illegible]—he being already, by virtue of the marriage, seized of an estate in the premises for their joint lives. Strictly speaking there was nothing in this case, in this respect, for the act to apply to. It did not in terms include the present ownership, for that being in the husband, was not "the right or interest of the wife," and the reversion was already hers beyond a question.

But assuming, what is probable that it was intended by the phrase right and interest of the wife in the land to include all the interest which [illegible] to her from Congress under the Donation Act, then the act as to settlements already made, was so far void.

Although it does not distinctly appear from the plea of [illegible] when this settlement was commenced, it is well known to the court [illegible] to have it made long before [illegible] of the Donation Act—September 27, 1850—while in the defendant's brief it is [illegible] that it was made at least as early as that date. This being so, the husband was [illegible] of a life estate in the wife's share before the passage of the act of January 20, 1852. This was a vested right, which the legislature could not deprive him of. They might exempt it from execution, in the interest of the family, otherwise, but they could not divest him of that which had become his by the existing law of marriage. Starr v. Hamilton, 1 Deady 275; White v. White, 5 Barb., 474; W[illegible] v. G[illegible], 2 Kernan, 203.

At common law a married woman could not pass her freehold except by fine and recovery. Her deed was absolutely void. Bishop's M. W. § 586. But by the statutes in force in this [illegible] since September 29, 1849, a married woman could convey any interest of hers in lands by joining with her husband in a deed thereof, and not otherwise. See act of September 29, 1849, adopting the Iowa act "to regulate conveyances;" Sess. Laws of 1849, p. 181; "An act relating to alienation by deed, etc." Code of 1854, p. 476; same act, Code of 1874, p. 515.

The Donation Act not containing any provision touching the interest of the husband in the wife's share of the donation or the alienation of the same, except to forbid all contracts for the sale of the same prior to the completion of the residence and cultivation required by the act, both subjects were governed by the local law—the common law, except as modified by the above cited statutes. It follows that the wife during coverture could do no act in pais which would estop her from asserting her right to her land, and that the only way she could divest herself of her interest in her donation was by fine or recovery, or joining with her husband in a conveyance thereof. An estoppel in pais can never be more effectual than by deed. And as Chloe A. could not have affected her interest in this property by her separate deed, of course she could not by an estoppel in pais, 2 Wash. R. P., 455.

The plea of estoppel is bad.

But admitting that the wife's share of the donation was her separate estate and that she could, by her acts in pais, estop herself from asserting her title thereto, the same as if she were a femme sole, the facts stated in the plea do not constitute an estoppel. They lack utterly, the necessary and essential ingredients of intention to deceive on the part of Chloe A., and the want of knowledge or all convenient means of acquiring it, on the part of Smith, Holman, Grover et al., concerning the true state of the title. The alleged sales of the property commenced in 1852 and ended in 1861. Chloe A. is not charged with anything more than simple acquiescence in relation to any of them except the one from Holman to Grover, which took place in 1853. As to this one she is alleged to have advised the purchase, saying that Holman was the owner of the lot. Incidentally it appears from the plea that up to this time the donation had not been partitioned between the husband and wife. In what part of it her share would be assigned, she could not say or direct. The power of partition was vested in the Surveyor General absolutely. Wythe v. Haskell, decided in this court, March 27, 1870. She may have thought he would so divide it, as to bring this lot within the share of her husband and co-tenant, who it appears had sold the same, probably upon the same impression or expectation, before 1852. But if so, she was mistaken. The donation was divided so that the premises were included in her share, and thus it turned out that Holman was not the owner of the lot and Grover acquired nothing by his purchase from him, nor even by his erection of a law office thereon. Nor can anything be more improbable than that Mr. Grover, a distinguished lawyer, was misled by this casual opinion or expression of this unlearned femme covert, as to the true state of the title, or that he didn't know and hadn't better means of knowing than she, what was the legal effect of her husband's prior deed to this lot.

There was a time, commencing probably with Wendall v. Van Rensselear, 1 John. Ch. 353, (1815) when this doctrine of equitable estoppel, upon the seductive plea of promoting justice in particular cases, threatened to sweep away the statute of frauds and leave the right to real property to rest upon the precarious tenure of the uncertain and prejudiced testimony of ignorant and interested witnesses to the casual, stale and parol acts and declarations of parties no longer in existence or interested to maintain the title.

But since the announcement of the salutary rule contained in Hill v. Epley, 31 Penn. St. 334, and Boggs v. Merced Co., 14 Cal., 367, this dangerous doctrine has been brought within reasonable and safe limits again. As was said by this court in McGuire v. Neff—December 6, 1875—"If such facts constitute an estoppel, then was the statute of frauds [illegible] in vain, and paper titles are not worth the material upon which they are written. * * * * Before a court of equity will estop a party from asserting his title to real property, it must be shown that there is some degree of turpitude in his conduct. To constitute an estoppel in pais in such a case, it must appear that the party sought to be estopped, with a knowledge of his rights in the premises, made some admission or declaration by word or deed, with an intention to deceive the party claiming the estoppel, or those under whom he claims, or with such carelessness or negligence as amounts to fraud, that the party alleged to have been misled was not only destitute of all knowledge of the true state of the title in question, but of all convenient means of acquiring such knowledge, and that he directly relied upon such admission or declaration, and will be injured by allowing its truth to be disproved. Boggs v. Merced Co. 14 Cal 367; Carpentier v. Thurston, 24 Cal. 268; Davis v. Davis, 27 Cal 40; Story's Eq § 391; Fields v. Squires, 1 Deady, 396.

At the date of this alleged declaration to Grover he had at least the same means of knowing as Mrs. Willson, that the husband's deed could not convey the wife's interest in the land, and that she herself could not convey it unless her husband joined in the deed for that purpose, that the surveyor general had the absolute power to partition the donation between the husband and wife as he saw proper, and that then and since September 27, 1850, both Chloe A. and her husband were forbidden by the donation act to make any sale of the premises, and were therefore incapable of so doing, jointly or otherwise. She could not have intended to deceive him, and he could not have been misled by what she said, which at best was a mere expression of opinion about a matter of which he presumably was better informed than she. The facts stated do not constitute an estoppel, even if Chloe A. had then been a femme sole.

But if these facts constituted a sufficient equitable estoppel, it would not be a good defence to this action at law. In Adams v. Burke, 1875, this court decided, after thorough argument and careful consideration of the question, that what is known as an equitable estoppel could not be pleaded in this State, and therefore not in this court, as a defence to an action of ejectment. At common law an estoppel in pais could only arise in the case of those solemn and peculiar acts to which the law gave the power of creating a right or passing an estate. Among these were feoffment and attornment. The instances given by Lord Coke are livery, entry, acceptance of rent, partition and acceptance of an estate. Subsequently estoppels in pais were extended by courts of equity, until there grew up a class of estoppels called equitable estoppels in pais. Except in cases concerning the title to lands, in time these were recognized and allowed by courts of law; and in some of the United States without this exception. But I know of no act or decision in this State authorizing such practice, and it is to be hoped there never will be.

The plea of the statute of limitations appears to be sufficient on its face; but on the argument it was admitted and assumed that Chloe A. Willson was a femme covert, since prior to 1852 and down to a period less than 20 years before the commencement of this action. Admitting this fact, counsel for defendant maintained that this being her separate property the statute ran against her as if she was a femme sole. However this may be, the conclusion having been reached that this was not the wife's separate property, the argument based upon the contrary assumption falls with it.

But the statutes of limitations in force in this State since May 1, 1854, expressly provide that in the case of a married woman to whom a cause of action accrues for the recovery of real property, that the time of such disability or marriage shall not be counted as part of the limitation. Code of 1854, p. 172; Code of 1870, p. 108. It is not apparent why these statutes do not apply to all married women, whether the property be her separate property or not. True, she might have sued alone for her separate property; but the exemption proceeds upon the theory that while she is under the disability of coverture, she is not in fact at liberty to sue without her husband's assent, even if the law will permit it. Now the husband may be a party to the disseizin and interested in having the bar of the statute established, and to prevent this possible wrong the law has provided without exception or qualification that the limitation upon a woman's right to sue for the recovery of her real property shall not run during coverture.

The demurrer is sustained as to the plea of estoppel and overruled as to the rest of the answer. If the plaintiff wishes to avail himself of the disability of Chloe A., during her husband's lifetime, he must reply to the plea of the statute and set up the coverture.

A. C. Gibbs and Ellis G. Hughes for the plaintiff.

J. Quinn Thornton and W. F. Trimble for the defendant.

THE SEA-SIDE HOUSE,

CLATSOP BEACH,

IS NOW OPEN FOR THE RECEPTION OF VISITORS.

J. C. OLMSTED.

BAY VIEW HOUSE,

BAKER'S BAY, UNITY, W. T.

MR. DEXTER INFORMS THE PUBLIC that his House is now open for the reception of guests. Its advantages in every respect over any other Summer Resort are too well known to Oregonians to repeat here. To strangers I will say that the place is in plain sight and across the Bay from Astoria, on the sheltered side of Cape Hancock, and very near and adjacent to the Fort and Lighthouse, on Baker's Bay, a beautiful sheet of water, unequaled for Sailing, Rowing, Fishing and Bathing. The dark forest with its picturesque drives, its mountain springs, profusion of wild berries, wild flowers and ferns, the horse trail to the Cape for Equestrians or walkers, is one of the most delightful Panoramas to the eye ever witnessed. The cosy beaches, its caves, luxuriantly wooded Island, its views of Astoria, Chinook, Fort Stevens, [illegible] old Tillamook, in the blue distance.

The courteous hospitality of the officers of the Garrison at the Fort, and also of Mr. Munson and family, of the Lighthouse, make that place well worthy of a visit.

The salt Water Bathing in the bay within a few feet of the hotel, excels anything far or near, for warmth of the water and mildness of its waves, far preferable to the heavy surf and cold winds for women, children and invalids, while the sturdy swimmer or those who love the foaming surf, in a few minutes walk will find a beach unsurpassed in beauty, hard and level for one continuous drive of thirty miles. At this end are huge rocks stretching out into the ocean, from which fishers take from the sea, Bass, Rockfish, Tom Cod, Porgies, etc, etc. Crabs, Clams, Oysters, &c., in abundance, (and the Table will never lack a sufficiency of these desirable adjuncts.) Boats upon the Bay, Saddle Ponies for the children, Teams to the Weather Beach, Croquet, Swings, Quoits, etc., FREE to Guests.

Prices reduced from the old tariff.

To those who would like to camp out, wood and water and use of ground free. Groceries, provisions, milk, eggs, butter, etc., for sale at a small profit. Campers can board at the Hotel if they prefer, at fair rates. A large Livery Stable, two new and fine Ten Pin Alleys, attached to the place.

Stage Office to Oysterville, Postoffice, Wells, Fargo & Co's office also there. No raw winds or damp fogs, and more beautiful tracks and shady groves cannot be found. The only regret the Landlord has, is that his house is not larger, but his grounds are large enough and beautiful enough to warrant next season a Hotel worthy of the surroundings.

C. H. DEXTER, Proprietor.
